COLONEL GRANT'S SPEECH.

Colonel Grant, in rising to open the after-dinner speaking, had a cordial reception, and after referring to the individual work done by other patriotic

Sons of the Revolution and Sons of the American Revolution devote themselves to the history of the Revolutionary period. The Society of Foreign Wars confine themselves to works connected with the war periods of our Nation from the Revolution down to and including the war with Mexico. The Association of the War of Bi2 as the name denotes, gives especial attention to events of that war, and the Aztecs to the war with Mexico, the Grand Army of the Republic and the Sons of Veterans to the late War of the Rebeillon.

Thus we see that each society has a single field, of greater or less extent, while the Founders and Patriots, metaphorically speaking, has the "whole farm." It stands to reason that, in the course of time, many of these associations must go to the wall, and it behooves us, therefore, to so conduct Sons of the Revolution and Sons of the American tional society by the name of the Gentriots of America. Colonel Frederick D. Grant was elected governor-general; Edward Pliny Chageneral; Morris Patterson Ferris, attorney-general; Dr. Howard Summer Robbins, register-general; Dr. Thomas Egleston, historian-general, and the Rev. Joseph F. Folsom, chaplain-general, on November 13 last the General Court of the order metagain at the City Hall for its semi-annual meeting. Two hundred members were then represented by their delegates. A charter for a new society in the State of Pennsylvania was granted to Rear-Admiral Richard W. Meade, Captain Samuel Emlen Meigs, Frederick Rogers Sparhawk and twelve other prominent Philadelphians. A chapter of the New-York State Society was inaugurated in the city of Albany at a dinner at the Fort Orange Club, on January S. under the leadership of General Robert Shaw Oliver, Dr. Willis Gaylord Tucker and Dr. George Rogers Howell, of the State Ibrary.

OCCASION OF THE CELEBRATION.

The order chose as the day for its first annual dinner the 24th anniversary of the proclamation by Governor Stuyvesant of bursher government in New-Amsterdam. The splendid banquet hall of the new hotel in East Forty-second-st, last night presented a brilliant appearance. Members and guests to the number of over two hundred were assembled at small separate tables, an arrangement that is rapidly coming into general favor, as conducing both to the comfort and conventence of the guests. Along the east side of the room was the head table, whereat sat the governor-general of the greats. Along the east side of the room was the head table, whereat sat the governor-general of the greats. General Tracy responded to the "Day We Cele-brate."
Touching on the Greater New-York charter, the speaker said that the chief criticism was against the Municipal Assembly, but the Commission be-lieved that feature to be right, because it would clothe the representatives of the people with proper authority. Heretofore the people had no power in their local government, and it was a government of bureauters.

their local government, and it was a government of bureaucracy.

The charter was not perfect, and the speaker thought that he was the only one who favored it in all its points, including the four-headed police department. General Tracy said he would never place in the hands of one man the power of 1,000 policemen. He favored a board that could only act by public record and resolutions.

Thomas L. James, on behalf of W. A. Halsey, presented to the order an American dag and the society flag. Several other speeches followed.

THE CONSECRATION SERVICE HELD IN ALL SAINTS' CATHEDRAL AT ALBANY.

Albany, Feb. 2. In All Saints' Cathedral, at II o'clock this morning, Dr. James Dew Morrison, rector of St. John's Church, Ogdensburg, was consecrated Bishop of the Episcopal Missionary Diorese of Duluth. This diocese has an area of 57,000 square miles and a population of 400,000 persons. Participating in the consecration services with the Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doane, Bishop of Al-Colonel Grant, as has been stated, presided, and bany, were the following: Bishop Huntington, of colonel Grant, as has been supported by the Contral New-York, and the Rt. Rev. Dr. Gil-Adams, Frederic Allen Angell, James Jerome Bel-Adams, Frederic Allen Angell, James Jerome Bel-Beldwin, William B. Baldwin, bert, Bishop Coadjutor of Minnesota, who, with bert, Bishop Coadjutor of Minnesota, who, with den, George C. Batcheller, William B. Baldwin, Frederick A. R. Baldwin, Philadelphia; General Bishop Deane, were the three consecrators; Bish-North Carolina, who were presenters; Rev. Dr. Hamilton, Lord Dishop of Ottawa; Bishops Starkey of Newark, Walker of Eastern New-York, Kells of Spokane and Lawrence of Massachusetts, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Battershall and the Rev. Dr. R. M. Kirby, attending presbyters; the Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart, secretary of the House of Bishops; the Rev. Dr. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, New-York; Dr. Langford, general secretary of the Board of Missions; Dr. J. Lavingston Reese, registrar of the House of Bishops; Archdeacon Gilfillan, of Duluth, and about sixty Archdeacon Glifillan, of Duluth, and about sixty clergymen and laymen from the dlocese of Albany. The cathedral was well filled with the audience gathered to witness the ceremony.

At the request of the Bishop-elect, and by appointment of the presiding Bishop, the preacher was the Bishop of Albany. His subject was: 'The Ideal Bishop in the American Church in the Ninetenth Century.' The testimonials of election and of consent of the Standing Committees and Bishops were read by Dr. Hart, the Rev. William C. Prout, an assistant secretary of the House of Deputies, and Dr. Reese. It is a somewhat interesting and unusual fact that every Bishop in the Episcopal Church in America had given written consents having been received, which included the entire home episcopate of America, with the exception of the Missionary Bishop of Northern California, who is disabled by illness from any official actions the consecration Bishop and Mrs. Donne.

After the consecration Bishop and Mrs. Doane entertained the bishops, clergymen and other invited guests at luncheon at Graduates' Hall, in

A THIEF MORTALLY WOUNDED BY THE STORE'S

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 - A man was detected plifering in Wanamaker's store late this afternoon. He was followed to the street by William H. Mc-Calley, who is employed as a detective at the store, and who ordered the man to surrender. He told McCalley that if he came a foot nearer to him he would kill him. McCalley drew his revolver, and the man turned and ran. McCalley fired at him and struck him in the back. The man was taken to the hospital, where it was found that the builet had severed his spinal column and that his entire body was paralyzed. He gave his name as William Drumgoole, of Lawrenceville, Brunswick County, Va. The man can hardly survive his injuries.

ching and reported everything until his religious com-positions became as actual, as plastic, as prosatic, as his studies of German peasants or barnyard animals, his "Madonna," for example, is always the most commosphace of women, remdered impressive, if she is impressive at all, by a revelation of the human sweetness in her familiar, German, fifteenth century face. One way of confirming this view is by com-paring Durer's engravings with the studies he made face. One way of confirming this view is by comparing Direr's engravings with the studies he made for them and which are accessible in various European galieries. For "The Virgin Crowned by Two Angels," which is numbered $\overline{3}$ in Mr. Koehler's catalogue, Darer made a study in ink which has for many years been preserved in a private collection in Lonion. The good-natured matron who figures in the plate is not one whit idealized from the woman of the sketch. The latter, drawn obviously from life, shows just spech an individual as Dürer knew in his cally walks about Nuremburg. He could risk any type when he was engraving a grotesque. When he was designing a sacred composition he clung to his model as much as when he was making a portrait, and the result is equally plain-spoken, conaily lacking in poetry. What he lacked in poetry Dürer made up in truth, but he also got something more—he got that noble distinction of style to which we have already referred. In looking over the plates in this coiscition at the Grotier Club—plates numbering not many more than flyescore—the eye dwells with curioesty upon the unfathomable allegaries, with tenderness upon the simple religious designs, with the livellest sympathy upon the partraits but throughout all the work there is nothing which touches the im-[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Canton, Ohio, Feb. 2.-Callers came to the home of the President-elect to-day in groups of two, and four, and eight, and even ten. There were more than a hundred visitors from a distance, and they all saw Major McKinley and had a word with him. Three candidates for the Cabinet were urged by their friends. The largest, and most influential delegation in the interests of a Cabinet possibility was the which came to urge the appointment of Major William Warner, of Kansas City. In the delegation were C. P. Walbridge, Mayor of St. Louis; D. P. Dyer, of St. Louis; Major J. L. Bittinger. of St. Joseph; Gardiner Lathrop, of Kansas City, and Mayor P. D. Houstain, of Sedalla. Both the Kerens and Filley wings of the party were represented in the delegation, and it was suggested that the selection of Major Warner for the Cabiner would unite the Republicans of Missouri and destroy every trace of the fatal factional bitterness that has existed for many years. Indorsements of Major Warner's candidacy were presented from the Legislatures of Missouri, Kausas, Texas and Indiana, Major Warner is being pressed for Secretary of the Inliest sympathy upon the partraits; but throughout all the work there is nothing which touches the imagination with more force or with more originality than the drawing, the line, the style. It is, after a libecause he was such a miracolous draughtsman that petret's appeal is still potent, still imperative. His human significance is permanent and his "Pickheymet," his "Albert of Brandenburg," remain stamped upon the brain as individualities in the truest sense of the word, but these men are magnetic in Diner's plates not merely because he understood them; they live through the fascination of his contours, through the grave, majestic and yet exquisitely supple character of that line through which he sought to express what he saw. We fancy that the present exhibition will attract different students in different ways, that there are some to whom the plate-prints will have much to say concerning fifteenth century costume and manners, that there are others who will reide so pender once more the riddies offered in the greensque designs. But the common ground on which all students of Direr are bound to meet is that of an intellectual realist setting forth his transcript of life in terms of imprecable draughtsmanship. We have said that Direr knew nothing of sensious healty. The criticism holds good. The most graceful designs in [11] so that a process of suavity and then power, the linear side of Durer approaches the sensious side of leasty. terior or Attorney-General. The chances are that Judge Joseph McKenna, of California, will be Secretary of the Interior. He has accepted a Cabinet office, and the underlinear side of Dürer approaches the sensious set of beauty.

It should be noted in concluding this brief glance at the great master of engarving that the catalogue prepared for the Grobler Chub's exhibition is one of unusual erudition and insight. Mr. Kochler has poured all his learning and enthusiasm into his passes, and, besides collating all the authorities on the technical and historical issues involved, he has provided much useful annotation of Dürer's obscurities. The occasion is worthy of the immense pains taken by the cataloguer. The plates are throughout of the highest order of excellence, a perfect impression having been obtained wherever possible. Various collectors have loaned their treasures in order to keep the quality of the exhibition on a lafty level. standing is that it is to be the portfolio of the final cast of his Cabinet had not been made, and he could not tell what changes in the assignments to the various portfolios might have to be made. It may be that when the names are sent to the Senate on March 5, that of Judge Mc

Kenna will be opposite the portfolio of Justice. It is also likely that ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts may not be Secretary of the Navy. It is impossible to tell what place he may have till all of the Cabinet officers are selected. There are still two vacant places in the Cabinet, and there is no reason to think either of them will be filled before the end of next

The knowledge that Judge Goff is unable to accept a place in Major McKinley's Cabinet has caused the friends of some of the Southern candidates to take fresh hope. A renewed effort is being made in behalf of James A. Gary, of Baltimore. He is supported by a number of influential politicians in all of the Southern States except two, and there is a great deal to be said in his favor, but it is not thought that Major McKinley will select a Maryland man. One reason is that there is active opposition within the State to every one who has been suggested. There has been another Maryland possibility under discussion here for several days, Judge Lewis McComas, of Hagerstown, on the bench of the District of Columbia, but Senator Wellington is understood to be opposed to him, and, as he already has an agreeable office, it is not likely that the President-elect will be disposed to invite him into his Cabinet, though he thinks extremely well of him. There is no one thinks extremely well of him. There is no one in sight at present among the Southern Republicans who seems to be available for Cabinet purposes, and by many it is deemed extremely probable that Major McKinley will have no representative from that section in his official family when it is finally made up.

The State of New-Yerk may be treated in a similar way if some first-class man cannot be found against whose appointment there is not a formal protest.

found against whose appointment there is not a formal protest.

It was reported here to-day that Major McKinley had offered the effice of Commissioner of Pensions to General Sickles, of New-York, but it is almost needless to say the story is without foundation. Major McKinley has not offered this place to General Sickles, and has no intention of so doing, nor is it likely that General Sickles would accept it if it were offered him.

Senator-elect W. E. Mason, smiling and juidlant over his victory, called on Major McKinley this merning, lunched with him, and spent the day in Canton. Major McKinley congratulated him with great cordiality upon his election, and they discussed Illinois politics for an hour and they discussed Illinois politics for an hour and finally adopted—E41.

States at the last session of the Kentucky Legislature, came to Canton to-day. He was invited by Major McKinley, who wants the Republicans to elect a Senator in Kentucky without fail.

Among other callers to-day was U. A. Fee, of Warren, Ohio, who came to urge Major McKinley to appoint Eart Dunlap, of Arizona, Governor of the Territory. Mr. Dunlap is a native of Northeastern Ohio, and is earnestly indorsed for this place. Ex-Congressman McCord, of Wisconsio, who lives at Phoenix, is thought to be the leading candidate, but some opposition to him is said to have developed.

Joseph G. Gibbs, of Norwalk, Ohio, who is a candidate for the office of Public Printer, was also a caller. Other callers were Judge Frank Dellenbaugh, of Cleveland; Arthur E. Meyer, of Elizabeth, N. J., and E. S. Gilletts, of Cleveland. Senator-elect Mason urged Major McKinley to appoint Heary C. Payne, of Wisconsin, to the Cablnet, but it is not thought that Mr. Payne is now under consideration.

VOCATED BY THE NEXT PRESIDENT. New-York may yet get a place in the Cabinet of Major McKinley, in spite of the belief that mest of the places have been filled without drawing on the Empire State. A few days ago the President-elect was asked what he expected to do for New-York in the way of a portfolio. He replied, it was said: "New-York will have no cause for disappoint ment. We shall attend to that at the proper time." This remark of Mr. McKinley is now construed by politicians and business men of this city to mean that the long-advocated scheme for a Department of Commerce and Navigation is to be realized, that a New-Yorker who has the confidence of the commercial and business interests of the country will be selected to organize and take control of the Suddenly the march broke up in a dreamy, swinging waitz, and the thirty-seventh annual Charity Bail was under way. Mr. Hadden seemed untiring in his efforts to facilitate the dancing, and with his assistants was constantly on the alert to discover some dancer in need of a partner.

Supper was served in the rooms of the Opera Club throughout the evening, and the tables before and after inidnight were occupied by a number of golly parties. Among those at the ball not already mentioned were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Starin, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Grace, Dr. and Mrs. Clement Cleveland, Miss Elsie Cleveland, Mrs. J. H. V. TYPHOID FEVER EPIDEMIC IN CANTON. Canton, Ohlo, Feb. 2 - There are over one hundred Canton, Ohlo, Feb. 2.—There are over one hundred cases of typhoid fever in this city. The cause is attributed to the water supply. There have been several deaths from the fever, Mrs. Emma Troli, formerly an amanuensis for Major McKinley, being among those who have succumbed to the discusse. The public schools, hotche and other places are using water from artesian wells.

Mr. Storer is possessed of large wealth, and has had a creditable experience in public Hie. He served during his Congressional term on the Foreign Affairs and Commerce committees. He was an active member of both committees. He has been a close student of foreign affairs, and it is this knowledge, together with his excellent relations with Mr. McKinley, which are understood to have resulted in his selection.

When he arrived the next day it was with one arm in a sling, two black eyes and in a generally dilapidated condition. He explained thiswise: "Yer see, when I wint in the dure, there stood a man all dressed up who axed me who I was. Says it 'None of yer business.' With that he says to me, says he. is outrivalled itself. That "Greater New-York Edition" comes into the public arena with a shout of triumph, and no "thesaurus" will afford enough tion sufficiently to describe it. You have given an nvaluable résumé of almost everything that is goinvaluable résumé of aimost everything that is go-ing to bear on the prosperity of this imperial me-tropolis in the years to come, under its new dignity, and have made a condensed business encyclopædia which will have a wideepread welcome in libraries, offices and counting-rooms, as well as at the family fireside. And then its illustrative portraits of sturdy and successful loginess men give it addi-tional value. THE GREATER NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

INTERESTING AND ATTRACTIVE.

From The Utica Press.

Special editions are not rare with the newspapers nowadays. It is rare, however, that any newspaper presents such an interesting and attractive edition as that The New-York Tribune presented Saturday. It was a review of the institutions of the several municipalities that are soon to be included in Greater New-York. The information which this edition contains in exceedingly valuable. There are exhaustive articles dealing with every distinctive feature of business and commerce in the metropolis. Excellent illustrations of buildings and public places are given.

VALUABLE TO BUSINESS MEN.

From The Philadelphia Record.

On Saturday The New-York Tribune published an industrial supplement containing a mass of well-marshalled facts concerning the trades and professions of Greater New-York. The issue is of special value to business men, and reflects credit upon our enterprising contemporary.

A STROKE OF BUSINESS. From The Troy Press.

A splendid stroke of enterprise—The New-York Tribune's Greater New-York edition.

NEW-YORK'S BEST JOURNALISM.

From the Utica Herald.

The most creditable and enterprising work done by any New-York paper recently was the Greater New-York edition Saturday of The Tribune. IT TOLD THE WHOLE STORY.

From The Wilkesbarre Record. The New-York Tribune on Saturday is seventy-six page edition, which was a ve-illustrated history of Greater New-York.

WORTH PRESERVING. From The Jersey City Journal. That was a great paper The Tribune got out to-ay. It is worth preserving as a souvenir. It nows enterprise and good work.

REFLECTED GREATNESS. From The Buffalo News.

Saturday's issue of The New-York Tribune was devoted to the "Greater New-York." Of course, it was a Greater Tribune, and reflected the greatness of the great city. IT SPEAKS VOLUMES. From The Troy Times.

The Greater New-York edition of The New-York Tribune to-day is a fine illustration of the enter-prise and resources of that paper. ITS SUPPLEMENTS.

From The Springfield Union.

It is a great paper.

The edition was profusely illustrated and had two colored supplements of much excellence. The Tribune management is to be congratulated on its A JOURNALISTIC WONDER.

From The Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin. The New-York Tribune's "Greater New-York edition" is a wonder in journalism. BRIEFLY DESCRIBED. From the Poughkeepsie Engle,

OF PERMANENT VALUE. From the Binghamton Republican.
It should be and probably will be printed in more convenient form for the library. It is very interesting, and highly creditable to The Tribune. HOW IT COVERED THE FIELD.

From the Rome Sentinel.

It was devoted to the greatness of Greater New-York, and covered the entire field of business and commerce in the enlarged city, not only giving information of value, but also affording a clear conception of the magnitude and importance of the consolidated municipality.
